Ché Broadway | Above The Influence (EP)

Following the successful reception of Ché Broadway's Broadway & Quincy (SPECIAL EDITION), which was released in the last quarter of 2010, Ché has been working with a number of artists & producers who inspired him to create this beautiful EP.

The elegant production coupled with sharp hitting lyrics that take healthy chunks from all of our lives are superbly mixed by renowned engineer Jamie Siegel. The issues tackled on this EP range from the lack of authenticity in today's hip-hop market to the true essence of a revolutionary. Ché is not ordinary in his angle of attack or delivery of his flow, he mercilessly destroys any instrumental bestowed upon him no matter who the beatmaker. The Apathy produced "Red Dawn" has been the consensus favorite at listening parties, though each track has invoked demonstrative reactions everywhere they've been heard.

The overwhelming feedback received regarding "Holes In The Fabric," a spoken word piece that appeared on 2008's The Sangraal (SPECIAL EDITION), compelled Ché to include something similar with this release. So, he reached out to legendary poet ManChild to collaborate on the track "Revolution." It is a no-holds-barred attack on global sociopolitical systems and those who assist, enable and/or control them. A truly sizzling referendum that will certainly incite a rise, positive or negative, in those who hear it, much like its predecessor.

In retrospect, this EP is the first "new" release from Ché since 2008's mixtape, Bullets Over Broadway II, which thrust this MC into the known underground and began his "march on the industry." Ché Broadway is truly Above The Influence.
